A Kiddy boy from Broad St Giles no better than a wild leech.
Who he could mimic in the fields, a ruddy God, or Toys bark.
He prigg'd a little curly rogue his name was pretty primping
And from a house an uphaw dog than word in search of Dombey
How wove wove, but de middle ri or. then
Was wove wove &c

He found one on the fallow land that owns had been broke in
With rusty spur he mounted him, with which began to probe him
He held the buffer in one hand the other toward the donkey.
And Galliped off toward the farm with him and pretty primping
This mad dived savage full of spirit full and his choice Dombey
The bloody end with all his might about the head he brot him,
Then he round the eye again, no matter how has set the
So he through the Village jump he end, come up you bloody thief
So you think I stole eye
